MARSP names new executive director

Royce Humm

Royce Humm, former executive director of Information Technology and Planning Services at Michigan Virtual University, will join Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel (MARSP) as executive director, replacing Mark Guastella, who retires in September after leading MARSP since 2011.

"Humm brings a diverse background to our leadership team," says Paul Lerg MARSP president. "His education and technology background will provide valuable insight as MARSP continues to serve its 40,000 members and protects their retirement pensions and health care."

Humm earned a master's degree in business administration from Ferris State University as well as a bachelor's of science degree in information technology management from Baker College of Owosso. He also is an alumnus of the Michigan Education Policy Fellowship Program.

An active member of the community, Humm has served on the Board of Education for Breckenridge Community Schools, the Board of Directors of Gratiot County Community Foundation and Lafayette Township Board of Review.

MARSP is an independent, non-partisan association of more than 40,000 retired public school employees from every work group and geographical location in Michigan. The association's primary mission is to protect the pension and health care benefits of retired public school employees.
